6 AIR CORRESPONDENCE

10 IMPERIAL AIRWAYS: A CAUSE FOR CONCERN?

Using previously unseen documents from the Royal Aero Club Trust archives, Ralph Pegram argues that the 1930s were not such a "golden age" for Imperial Airways; he also reveals some unusual designs built to the troubled airline's specifications, but which remained on the drawing board

24 STRATOJETS IN BLIGHTY

In 1953 the UK had its first encounters with the Boeing B-47; Robert Hopkins III and C. Mike Habermehl detail the USAF's first three Stratojet deployments to Britain

34 THE WORLD'S FIRST AERONAUTICAL EXHIBITION

This year marks the 150th anniversary of the first aeronautical exhibition to be held anywhere in the world, at the Crystal Palace in South London, as Philip Jarrett relates

44 THE ROME-TOKYO EXPRESS

In the first article in a new three-part chronological series on the wartime use of air transport by the Axis forces — or lack thereof — Ray Flude and Gregory Alegi take a look at the Italians' attempt to link Rome and Tokyo in 1942

56 VIKINGS IN AFRICA

The John Stroud Archive returns with a trip from the UK down to East Africa and back in a Vickers Viking, with Nick Stroud (no relation!) as your guide

66 BRUTE FORCE & INNOVATION

In celebration of the 60th anniversary of the first flight of the Blackburn Buccaneer, Gp Capt Tom Eeles, who flew both variants for the Fleet Air Arm and RAF, puts us in the cockpit of the brawny "banana jet"

76 MARKED BY MISFORTUNE

South American aviation specialist Amaru Tincopa profiles the career of the little-loved Breda Ba.65 ground-attack monoplane in service with the Fuerza Aérea de Chile

86 BAMBOO BIRDS & OTHER RARE SPECIES

Indigenous aircraft design in the Philippines has met with limited success, but several light aircraft were developed there during the 1950s and 1960s, as Nick Stroud explains

94 THE VISCOUNT COMES TO AMERICA Pt 1

Airline historian David H. Stringer opens his series on the three American airlines which bought the Vickers Viscount direct from the manufacturer with the first — and arguably the most controversial — Capital Airlines

104 SHCHERBAKOV'S FORGOTTEN WORKHORSE

One of the most useful transports in the Soviet Air Force's wartime inventory — and probably the least-known — is the Shcherbakov Shche-2, as Nikolay Yakubovich relates

112 PERFECT 10

Continuing his series on the often thorny issue of naming aircraft in RAF service, Chris Gibson examines the official files to find out why the VC10 became the . . . VC10

118 ARMCHAIR AVIATION

123 LOST & FOUND

124 SWEDEN'S GHOST ROCKETS

In the summer of 1946 Sweden became the focus of a series of "ghost rocket" attacks. Were they Russian test weapons? UFOs? Lennart Andersson investigates . . .
